9/11 Families for a Secure America (9/11FSA) today expressed its support for excluding NYC Mayor Michal Bloomberg and other politicians who support construction of a mosque near Ground Zero.

Peter Gadiel, President of 9/11FSA and father of 9/11 victim James Gadiel, noted that "Islam's history is one of intolerance and violence perpetrated against people of other religions. We have seen among Moslems vast popular demonstrations of joy at the destruction of the murders of 9/11 and little but quiet, pro forma denunciations from so-called 'moderate' Moslems."

Gadiel added: "The history of Islam is replete with destruction of the monuments of other cultures and construction of mosques on the ruins as symbols, not of friendship but of conquest. There is no evidence that this Ground Zero mosque is any different."

Joan Molinaro, 911FSA board member and mother of victim Carl Molinaro, a NY firefighter said: "I'm angry that Bloomberg would collaborate with these promoters of violence and hate. Unlike him I'm not fooled; this is not a gesture of reconciliation, it's a display of contempt for my son. Mr. Rauf, the man promoting this says the U.S. was an accessory to these murders." I don't want Bloomberg anywhere near the 9/11 commemoration.

Bruce DeCell, 9/11 FSA vice president and father in law of victim Mark Petrocelli said "Mayor Bloomberg can sell out to the people behind the murders of my son in law, but I won't. Bloomberg's participation would be an insult to the memory of those victims of Moslem violence murdered on September 11. "

DeCell added that the members of 9/11 FSA had asked Bloomberg to meet with them and asked him to oppose the mosque and he did not bother to respond.

"You know," said DeCell, "these politicians are always ready to promote their careers using the memory of 9/11, but when it comes to taking a stand that will help prevent another attack, they run and hide. Bloomberg doesn't belong with us on 9/11."
